The landscape of the professional world is evolving rapidly with technological advancements, global interconnectivity, and the constant shift in business dynamics. Commerce graduates, who have knowledge in fields like accounting, finance, and business management, now face new challenges and opportunities in a fast-paced and digitally driven economy. It is imperative for these graduates to adapt and acquire a new set of skills that complement their foundational knowledge and help them stand out in the job market, to succeed in today's competitive environment.

The programme was hosted by Dr. Gulam Ommar Ahmed, Assistant Professor, Department of Banking/Finance, Morigaon College.

1. Technical Skills:

The rise of technology in almost every aspect of business operations has made technical proficiency one of the most important new age skills. Commerce graduates should consider upskilling in the following areas:

a. Data Analytics and Business Intelligence

Data is the new oil. Organizations rely on data-driven insights to make strategic decisions. Commerce graduates should be proficient in tools like Microsoft Excel, Tableau, Power BI, and Google Analytics. Understanding data patterns, predictive analytics, and decision-making based on data is crucial.

b. Financial Technology (FinTech)

The FinTech sector is revolutionizing financial services, from digital payments and blockchain to artificial intelligence in banking. Graduates should be familiar with these innovations and tools like cryptocurrency, blockchain, robo-advisors, and online trading platforms.

c. Accounting Software and ERP System

Knowledge of accounting software such as QuickBooks, Tally, and ERP systems (SAP, Oracle) is vital. These tools streamline business processes, financial tracking, and reporting, making them indispensable in most business environments

2. Communication and Soft Skills:

Technical skills are undeniably important, but soft skills remain a significant factor in career success. The ability to communicate effectively and build relationships is essential for navigating the business world.

a. Effective Communication

Clear and concise communication is key to success in any professional setting. Commerce graduates should be able to communicate complex financial data in simple terms to various stakeholders, including non-financial individuals. Mastering written and verbal communication, including presentation skills, is crucial.

b. Emotional Intelligence (EQ)

Emotional intelligence refers to the ability to recognize, understand, and manage emotions in oneself and others. This skill is highly valued by employers as it contributes to better teamwork, conflict resolution, and leadership.

c. Critical Thinking and Problem Solving

Being able to analyze a problem, consider various solutions, and implement effective strategies is a highly sought-after trait in any field. For commerce graduates, critical thinking is especially necessary in areas like financial analysis, risk management, and strategic planning.

3. Global Awareness and Cultural Competency:

a. Cross-Cultural Communication

In the globalized economy, commerce graduates often work in multicultural teams or with international clients. Understanding cultural differences and communicating effectively across cultures is crucial in maintaining positive business relationships and avoiding misunderstandings.

b. Knowledge of Global Markets and Economic Trends

Keeping up with international market trends, economic shifts, and geopolitical events is essential for commerce graduates, especially in fields like finance, marketing, and supply chain management. A global mindset helps in making informed business decisions.

4. Leadership and Entrepreneurial Skills:

a. Leadership and Team Management

In today's work environment, even entry-level employees are expected to display leadership qualities. For commerce graduates, developing skills to motivate, inspire, and manage teams is essential. Effective leadership includes time management, delegation, and maintaining team morale.

b. Entrepreneurial Mindset

An entrepreneurial mindset is about innovation, risk-taking, and problem-solving. For those interested in starting their own business or leading a startup, understanding how to identify market opportunities, build business models, and navigate challenges is essential.

5. Networking and Professional Development:

a. Build a Personal Brand

A strong personal brand on platforms like LinkedIn is crucial for showcasing skills, accomplishments, and expertise. Graduates should maintain an active presence, share insights, and connect with professionals in their field.

b. Mentorship

Seeking mentorship and guidance from experienced professionals can help navigate career paths, gain valuable insights, and build long-term professional relationships.

The future of work is multifaceted, and commerce graduates must develop a diverse skill set to succeed in this dynamic environment. While technical skills in data analytics, FinTech, and cloud computing are critical, soft skills such as communication, emotional intelligence, and critical thinking are just as essential. Furthermore, embracing adaptability, continuous learning, and leadership will position graduates to take on roles in leadership and entrepreneurship.

By focusing on developing these "new age" skills, commerce graduates will be equipped to thrive in a rapidly evolving global economy and secure long-term career success. Embracing these strategies, commerce graduates can unlock new opportunities and secure a successful career path in the ever-evolving business world.
